ART OF THE MASTERS: A Survey of African-American Art, 1980-2000

Funds from the Friends of African & African-American Art program will bring a national exhibition to our community. The exhibit, ART OF THE MASTERS: A Survey of African-American Images, 1980-2000, opened at the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture in New York City. It will travel to the Arts Council in Fayetteville (the only stop in the Southeast) in January 2010, then move on to Chicago.

The exhibit opens on Fourth Friday, Jan. 22 and runs through Mar. 6, 2010.

Art of the Masters is FREE and open to the public. Gallery hours are: Mondays-Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to noon; Saturdays from noon to 4 p.m. To request a guided group tour, call Calvin Mims at 910-323-1776

This one-of-a-kind exhibition offers a glimpse into the soul of a people. At the dawning of this new millennium, this exhibition brings together a roster of revered artists who solidly established their careers in the previous century. Some are founders and long-time members of The National Conference of Artists (NCA). Others, while not members of the NCA, have collaborated with the organization on various projects. By recognizing these masters and their creativity, NCA records a vital facet of world art history, and that of the African-American in particular.

This exhibit contains more than 60 works of art from 36 national and international artists such as John Biggers, Elizabeth Catlett, Floyd Coleman, Robert Colescott, Adger Cowans, Willis Bing Davis, James Denmark, Murray Depillars, David Driskell, Betye Saar, Sam Gilliam, Hugh Grannum, Al Hinton, Jacob Lawrence, Richard Mayhew, Margaret Burroughs, Jon Onye Lockard, Dr. Samella Lewis, Al Loving, Benny Andrews, E. J. Montgomery, Calvin Jones, Reginald Gammon, Ben Jones, Romare Bearden, Lois Mailou Jones, Robert Stull, Aaron Ibn Pori Pitts, Greg Ridley, Frank Smith, Marian Stephens, Nelson Stevens, Donald Stinson, Yvonne Edwards Tucker, Raymond Wells, Rip Woods and Shirley Woodson.

The National Conference of Artists (NCA) is an organization of African-American visual artists, art educators, art historians, museum personnel, students, collectors and supporters. The NCA preserves, promotes and develops African-American culture and the creative expressions of artists rooted in that experience. Founded in 1959, the NCA celebrates 50 years of service in 2009.
